HONEYSUCKLE

HONEYSUCKLE

This prolific and popular climber is famous for both its rich scent and the luxuriance of its growth. The common Honeysuckle bears thick trusses of pale blooms. After dusk, their beautiful fragrance fills the garden.

YELLOW
FLAG

YELLOW FLAG

The beauty of the bloom contrasting with the green sabre-like leaves make this plant a delight in garden or park. The yellow flag, also known as the yellow iris, has a dramatic beauty equalled by few flowers.

DOG ROSE

DOG ROSE

This is the thorny wild rose found everywhere in the country and on commons. Of all the wild roses, white, pink and crimson, the pink Dog Rose is the best known. Its round red berry-seed, called a hip, gives a splash of colour to Autumn when the flowers are gone.

PRIMROSE

PRIMROSE

The Primrose (Primula acaulis) is supposed, from its name, to be the first flower of Spring. It can be found, sometimes, in sheltered places as early as January. The primrose has always been popular with English poets as a symbol of the re-awakening of nature in Spring.

Grace de Monaco

GRACE DE MONACO

Francis Meilland first produced this rose by crossing two famous roses Peace and Michele Meilland. Its colour is a rather cool elusive pink, and its scent, though not heavy, has a restrained appeal.

BLUE BUDGERIGAR

BLUE BUDGERIGAR

Since budgerigars first came from Australia over a century ago, many beautiful Blues have been developed: Skyblues, Cobalts, Mauves . . . To teach a bird to talk, train him at twilight—and start by repeating his own name which should have an ee sound. Budgie is a natural.

AMAZON PARROT

BLUE-FRONTED AMAZON PARROT

These parrots make ideal family pets. They are almost as good at talking as grey parrots, and, when training starts early enough, become so domesticated that they can be given the run of the whole house and garden with perfect safety. Feed them on parrot mixture, fruit and nuts.

RED and BLUE MACAW

RED AND BLUE MACAW

These lovable, brightly coloured, rather grotesque birds come from the rain forests of tropical South America between the Guianas and the Amazon. They are long-lived, and can be taught to talk quite well. Their affection for their owners makes them very popular.

GREEN BUDGERIGAR

GREEN BUDGERIGAR

Budgerigars first came from Australia. Their original colour was green. Among the ten million birds now kept in Britain there are many varieties, but it is said that the Greens are still tops for personality. They make wonderfully good companions.

YELLOW BUDGERIGAR

YELLOW BUDGERIGAR

In Australia, even in their wild state, yellow budgerigars sometimes occurred among the flocks of green. Now through selective breeding they are numerous and popular. Like other budgies, they need a balanced diet of canary seed, millet and greenstuff, to which must be added plenty of affection.
